October 28, 2000:

The McKenzie River Club transitioned smoothly into the Vida McKenzie Community Center, quickly filling seats for the board of directors and officers. The new organization plans to focus on community outreach, making more people aware of its existence as well as the availability of a meeting space for the mid-river area.

Around the first of the year, area residents should be hearing more about the center as a mailings gout and the new board of directors contacts area groups and organizations. Memberships are being solicited as well, priced at only $5.00 per family.
